

One incredible trip, two great conferences

SEPTEMBER 23-28, 2012

Mark you calendar now for the week of September 23 – 28, 2012, and plan to attend a historic week that brings together the RTCM Conference and the NMEA International Marine Electronics Conference & Expo in the same venue, the Lowes Royal Pacific Hotel in Orlando, Fla. This is the first time that NMEA and RTCM have coordinated their meetings to allow attendees and exhibitors to attend and learn from both conferences and a single exposition of the leading recreational and commercial marine electronics products available worldwide.

RTCM

The Radio Technical Commission for Maritime Services is an international non-profit, scientific, professional and educational organization. RTCM members comprise both government and non-government organizations rather than individuals.

The 2012 NMEA International Marine Electronics Conference and the 2012 RTCM Conference will have separate registrations, allowing participants to attend either; or both events. Watch www.nmea.org for details and registration information.

ONE PLACE, ONE WEEK

Beginning on Sunday, Sept. 23, with the 2012 RTCM Conference followed on Wednesday, Sept. 26, with the NMEA Conference, your week will bring a rich choice of seminars for technical training, education, networking and business development.

Never before have so many opportunities been available to the international marine electronics industry—in one place, in one week.

NMEA CONTACT INFORMATION email: info@nmea.org or ph: (410) 975-9425

Who should attend

- dealers
- distributors
- manufacturers
- wholesalers
- standards bodies
- product developers
- surveyors
- electronics installers

